

BARNES RESTS IN HIS SUIT AGAINST ROOSEVELT TODAY

EVIDENCE IS INTRODUCED TO PROVE PUBLICATION OF LIBELOUS STATEMENTS.

SEVEN REPUBLICANS ON JURY

Two Progressives and Two Democrats Complete Body to Hear Evidence.

(Associated Press)

Syracuse, N. Y., Apr. 20.—Counsel for Barnes in his $50,000 damage suit against Roosevelt today rested their case after they had offered evidence calculated to prove the publication of libelous statements.

Following the resting of Barnes' case counsel for Roosevelt read editorials taken from Barnes' newspaper, the Albany Journal, of the year 1914, lauding Roosevelt for his efforts to secure clean politics for the state. Barnes' lawyers placed only one witness on the stand. He was Roosevelt's secretary, and he told of giving out the offending statement. Roosevelt then took the stand and began by sketching his political career.

The jury which is hearing the case contains seven republicans and is as follows:

Henry Hoag, Republican, clerk, Fayetteville; Irving J. Mills, Republican, wood worker, Syracuse; Walter J. Zulle, Progressive, manufacturer, Syracuse; Franklin S. Rhoades, Republican, farmer, Elbridge; Leonard K. Huntington, Progressive, painter, Syracuse; F. W. Pierce, Republican, carpenter, Syracuse; Warren W. Sommers, Republican, grocer, Syracuse; Ray Tanner, Democrat, farmer, Marcellus; John W. Brown, Republican, farmer, Memphis; George E. Boschert, Progressive, manufacturer, Syracuse; Edward Burns, Republican, motorman, Syracuse; Peter Benek, Democrat, coal dealer, Liverpool.

Seven Republicans, three Progressives and two Democrats constitute the body of peers in William Barnes' $50,000 libel suit against Colonel Theodore Roosevelt. They will determine if Colonel Roosevelt, in a published statement last July to the effect that Mr. Barnes and Mr. Murphy were the invisible government that made for an alliance between crooked business and crooked politics meant to say that Mr. Barnes was personally corrupt, or was merely whacking at bad government.

These are the issues of the case as simply as they can be put.

There were little murmurs of surprise when John M. Bowers, senior counsel for the ex-president, explained that Colonel Roosevelt had never meant to charge that Mr. Barnes was a boss for profit only, or that he made "invisible government" pay rich dividends.

BIGGEST VOTE IN HISTORY OF CITY IS BEING POLLED TODAY

INDICATIONS ARE THAT 4,000 BALLOTS WILL BE CAST TODAY.

Figures compiled by the Telegraph at 3 o'clock this afternoon show that today's election has never been surpassed in size of votes except in the township election in the "Wet" and "Dry" a year ago. At that election, the entire township voted and so of course the figures were larger, but in this election the total vote will amount to at least 3800 and possibly may reach nearly to the 4,000 mark.

At 3 o'clock today 3638 men and women had voted in Dixon. 1914 of these were men and 1724 were women. The voting was continued heavily until closing time and will run considerably above these figures. The figures taken at 3 o'clock did not include the many persons in the booths voting and the people waiting outside to vote.

The vote at 3 o'clock by precincts, was—

	Men	Women
1st Pct.	384	351
2nd Pct.	386	330
3rd Pct.	332	280
4th Pct.	360	815
5th Pct.	452	448
Totals	1914	1724
Grand total	3638

LISTEN FOR THE WHISTLE

As we announced last night, the big whistle at the Brown Shoe factory will tell in loud tones the result of today's city election. It is not probable the outcome of the main issues of the day—the wet and dry and mayoralty contests—will be known before 7 or 7:30 o'clock because of the big vote. The code of signals is:

- Wet—One blast.
- Dry—Two blasts.
- Schmidt—Three blasts.
- Edwards—Four blasts.

Telephone Lines Will Be Clogged With Calls Tonight

Patrons Are Asked To Exercise Patience - Company Has Extra Help

The evening of the last wet and dry election in Dixon was the busiest one ever in the history of the local telephone company and because of the intense excitement and enormous number of calls during a short period of time, the lines were literally swamped with calls.

The condition may repeat itself tonight, although Manager Pitcher has made every preparation, and every position at the switch board in the central office will be filled and auxiliary operators will be ready to take their places so that the highest efficiency possible will be maintained.

Patrons of the telephone company are asked to be patient and if they find they cannot get calls through when they try, they must realize that nearly everybody else in the city is trying to telephone at the same time. If you don't get service at once, wait five minutes and try again. The phone company will be doing its best and the condition will be unusual.

Listen for the whistle to blow the signals, or come down town and watch the Evening Telegraph bulletins at Downing's Real Estate Office, corner of First and Galena, if you are anxious to get the news while it's red hot.

WANT THOUSAND COURSE MEMBERS

Y. M. C. A. PLANS ELABORATE LECTURE PROGRAM FOR COMING WINTER.

The board of directors of the Y. M. C. A. met at the building last evening for their monthly meeting. Super was served at 6:30 o'clock, after which the business meeting was held. A number of the bonds on the building have been paid in the past year and the writing of the remainder of the bonds was discussed. The matter of the entertainment course for next winter was talked over. The Redpath Lyceum Bureau has made a proposition of furnishing fifteen numbers in the course next season at a special price, provided an organization is gotten up, composed of a thousand members, the members of which are to pay a fee of $1, and the tickets to the entertainments are to be sold only to the members of the organization. Further action will be taken on the matter at a later date.

AUTOS COLLIDED ON DEPOT AVE.

There was a mix-up of autos on Depot avenue this morning shortly after 7 o'clock and as a result both head lights on the car of H. C. Dixon were smashed and the fender was bent and a tire punctured on the A. J. Scriven car. The street was congested with cars bringing voters to the polls at Youngman's coal office and it was while doging around cars that the collision occurred.

DIXON WOMAN SEES WORK OF RESCUE OF SUNKEN SUBMARINE

MRS. LEONARD ANDRUS WRITES OF EFFORTS TO RAISE U. S. SHIP "F-4."

Mrs. Leonard Andrus, formerly of Dixon, writes from Honolulu giving some intimate details of the desperate work that was done in the effort to raise the F-4, the U. S. submarine which sank in the harbor. Mrs. Andrus says, in part:

"Lately we have talked, thought and even dreamt nothing but this awful submarine accident. With the aid of a telescope a gentleman here fixed up we watched steadily for several days right from our front yard. So many navy people live around here we have heard very often of the work. I happened to be looking when they pulled up that anchor to which they had held so carefully. It was a bitter disappointment. I know one navy officer who was called Thursday noon when they started their hunt and he never came home until Sunday afternoon when he was let off for one hour's sleep. Some of them literally worked two and a half and three days without sleep. They then realized there was no hope of life.

We are all filled with astonishment at the feat of Jack Agraz, a sailor who one day dropped 205 feet in the water in six minutes. Of course he was almost crushed and had to be worked upon for, excepting a helmet, his body was not protected from the tremendous pressure. A day or two later he made the second dive of 215 feet, wearing only a helmet, but he took an hour for the descent. He thinks he could go 250 feet. Thank fortune only a few of the men in the submarine were married. One of the wives had twins twenty months old."

AUTOS DAMAGED IN COLLISION NEAR THIRD WARD POLLS

MACHINES DRIVEN BY MRS. RAYMOND MCGOWAN AND DAN BLACKBURN.

The O. H. Martin Hudson six and a Page car owned by Blackburn Bros. crashed together at the corner of Third street and College avenue at 10 o'clock this morning and both machines were considerably damaged.

Mrs. Raymond McGowan was driving the Martin car and was driving west on Third street. The Blackburn car, driven by Dan Blackburn, was coming down College avenue and the two machines, which were both four-wheel cars, met at the corner. The Martin car was damaged to the extent of a front wheel, the right one, and a fender and lamp and the livery car was badly wrecked, both by the collision and by skidding into the curb and a telephone pole. Both sides of the Blackburn car, back of the middle, were badly damaged and one rear wheel was entirely torn off. Fortunately no one was injured.

He is on the streets of the city every day and looks good for another twenty at least. His daughter, Mrs. Ida L. Hacket, of Chicago, is visiting her father, to be present at his anniversary.

Garcia Is Guilty; Jury Find Verdict Late Monday Eve.

Mexican Must Serve Time For Theft of Clothing From Local Store

In the circuit court late Monday afternoon the jury in the case of Alfredo Garcia, the Mexican, found him guilty of grand larceny. He will be sentenced by the court to an indeterminate term in the penitentiary at Joliet. Garcia is the man who stole several pairs of trousers from the store of Roynton-Richards Co., and he was caught attempting to hide them under some planks along River street.

This morning the case of Hario Rodriguez, the partner of Garcia, and charged with having stolen a shirt from the clothing store of Valle & O'Malley, was taken up. The case was given to the jury at 11 a. m.

During the morning a hearing was had in the divorce proceedings of Lila Donaldson vs. Harry Donaldson and a decree was granted. A few other chancery matters were taken up during the afternoon.

There being no further jury cases for the week the jurors were excused until next Monday afternoon at 1:30.

The jury in the Rodriguez case came in shortly after noon and found him guilty of petit larceny and that the value of the shirt taken was 65 cents. He was sentenced to 30 days in the county jail and to stand the costs of the prosecution.

HISTORY OF LOCAL OPTION CAMPAIGNS IN DIXON TOWNSHIP—TODAY'S FIRST CITY FIGHT

QUESTION WAS FIRST BROUGHT UP IN 1908 WHEN "DRYS" WON BY MAJORITY OF 120—TOWNSHIP RETURNED TO "WET" COLUMN IN 1910 BY 180 MAJORITY—WOMEN EXERCISED FIRST FRANCHISE LAST YEAR.

The history of Local Option campaigns in Dixon is one in which the township has always voted on the question, today's proposal to make the city anti-saloon territory being the first in which the question has been confined strictly to the city.

In 1908 the question was first brought up and the township was voted dry by a majority of 120. It remained saloonless for two years when in 1910 the wets brought the question up and the township returned to the wet column by a majority of 180.

In 1914 the drys again brought the matter to vote in the township, and women to the number of 2120 took advantage of their first chance at franchise and voted on the question. A total vote of 4367 was polled in the township a year ago, the wets winning by 317.

Today's vote, of course, will not be as large as that of a year ago, as the question is confined strictly to legal voters of the city of Dixon, and a comparative vote is, of course, impossible.

ROME SEES END OF WAR IN NEAR FUTURE; REPORT

ITALY'S PROBLEM MAY SOON BE SETTLED BY CONCLUSION OF HOSTILITIES.

TIME LIMIT WAS UP TODAY

Austria's Opportunity to Make Territorial Concessions Expires This Evening.

(Associated Press)

Rome, Italy, Apr. 20.—Persistent rumors in Rome are to the effect that the grave international questions concerning Italy may be solved in the near future by what at first seems almost incredible—the conclusion of general peace in Europe at a not far distant date. The fact that the advent of spring has not seen a resumption of aggressive hostilities as all the belligerents had promised is regarded as significant.

(Associated Press.)

Italy's decision for or against war is said in Rome to be imminent. The Rome correspondent of a Paris newspaper telegraphs that today marks the expiration of the time limit fixed by Italy for the presentation of proposals by Austria. It is generally understood that Austria has declined to make territorial concessions satisfactory to Italy, and, according to this report, the German and Austrian ambassadors at Rome are preparing to leave the country.

DEFEAT IN AFRICA

Advices received at Berlin are to the effect that the British expeditionary force that attempted to invade German east Africa was defeated with a loss of 700 men among them. Four companies were captured. The British are said to have landed from cruisers and transports. German losses are reported to be fifty-six killed and wounded.

APPEAL FOR CONFIDENCE

The London Times has again appealed to the government to take the country further into its confidence. It points out that except for local successes the war situation has undergone little change during the past five months. "We urge," says the Times, "that the government take time to make the nation understand how great are the sacrifices which still must be faced."

BRITISH DESTROYED E-5

The British Admiralty has announced that the British submarine E-15 was destroyed in the Dardanelles by British picket boats and not by the Turks. The submarine grounded in an apparently serviceable condition, says the Admiralty, but when the Turks tried to secure her two British picket boats manned by volunteers attacked her and destroyed her despite the fact that 200 rounds were fired at them from shore battery a few hundred yards distant. A hole was shot in one of the picket boats and it was sunk, but the crew was saved. One man was wounded.

PETITIONS.

A petition is a string of names and present them to authorities. It is brought around by a personal friend, however, it has been found that when a body of petitioners possess the divine right of suffrage, the said petitions are much more terrifying.

After you have signed there is no valid objection to your calling up the friend and asking him what it is all about. However, this is seldom done.

It indicates a want of confidence, and everything in this country, even crops, depends on confidence.

When the compiler of a petition has secured a list of names as long as a delinquent tax supplement, he takes it to some public official, presents it to him and says: "We, the free and untimely voters of this district demand the following." And when the official sees the list of stern and implacable citizens who are willing to lay down their lives for their rights, he caves in rapidly and says, "I submit to the will of the people. State your request."

The right of petitions is guaranteed in all constitutions. There is scarcely a country so destitute of liberty as to forbid its citizens to prepare petitions.

Petitions are very useful affairs, but the methods of signing them need considerable revision. Our constitutions should guarantee the right of every free-born citizen to read all petitions presented them and to refuse to sign the same in firm, loud tones, without being considered ill-natured to excess.

So long as the man who refuses to sign all petitions is regarded as unfavorably as the man who insists on buying his own drinks, we must expect a good deal of confusion in the mind of the faithful but timid public servant.

ROBERTS SINGS ON WAY TO CELL

Terre Haute Convicts Enter Ft. Leavenworth Prison.

ED HOLLER IS OSTRACISED

Election Fraud Convicts Gay En Route Become Sobered by Prison Walls—Judge Redman and Son in Pathetic Parting—Roberts Derides Crawford Fairbanks.

Leavenworth, Kas., April 20.—The special car carrying Mayor Donn M. Roberts and fourteen others convicted in the Terre Haute election conspiracy case arrived at the federal penitentiary at 10:35 a. m. The trip to prison began at Indianapolis at 1:50 p. m. Sunday. The men appeared cheerful, but were sobered by the prison walls.

"It's my forty-ninth trip to Leavenworth with prisoners," said Mark Storm, United States marshal, in charge of the party. "This is as jolly a bunch as I ever took up here."

Prisoners Deride Holler, Ed Holler, under sentence of one year and one day, sat all the way from Indianapolis on the rear seat of the car. Alone, ostracized by his fellow travelers, he pushed himself as far as he could into the corner and pulled his hat down over his eyes. Not one of his companions would speak to him. They derided him in all ways they could because Holler had turned state's evidence.

According to officials on the train Mayor Roberts sang a song he had made up to show his dislike for Crawford Fairbanks, a millionaire brewer of Terre Haute. Fairbanks had been a friend of Roberts and the mayor expected he would go on his bond. Fairbanks, however, refused, and so the executive, going to prison for six years, was disappointed.

In one of the car seats Ed Redman, judge of the circuit court, and his son, Hilton, twenty-two years old, sat together all the way, the father going to serve five years and the son two years.

Judge and Son Separated. A pathetic incident occurred as the guards were checking the men into line when they came off the train. Judge Redman and his son stood together, but the son's name was called first and he went to the head of the line with Sheriff Shea for companion.

Redman held up his hand neatly to attract the attention of the guard. No one paid any attention to him and then he spoke.

"Please, may I go with my son?" he asked.

Still no one noticed his request and he was hustled up into line. He stood there with lowered head.

PETERS BOWLERS ARE BEING PULLED DOWN

LEADERS OF CITY BOWLING LEAGUE DROPPED TWO GAMES MONDAY EVENING.

A closely contested match was rolled off in the City League at the Brunswick alleys on Monday evening between Peters and Fritz teams. Fritz' team captured two of the three games, winning the second game by a lead of but ten pins and the third with a lead of but two pins. If total pins had been counted instead of games, Peter's men would have been the winners, with 48 pins to the good. By losing the two games the gap for first place in the per centage column between the two teams was reduced and it gives Fritz' men a chance of yet winning out in the tournament. Each team has but four games to play and it has now resolved itself into a pretty contest as to the position in the percentage column when the tournament closes.

DANDRUFFY HEADS BECOME HAIRLESS

Scalp Dries—Chokes out the Hair And Prevents its Growth.

If you want plenty of thick, beautiful, glossy, silky hair, do by all means get rid of dandruff, for it will starve your hair and ruin it if you don't.

It doesn't do much good to try to brush or wash it out. The only sure way to get rid of dandruff is to dissolve it, then you destroy it entirely. To do this, get about four ounces of ordinary liquid arvon; apply it at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips.

By morning most, if not all, of your dandruff will be gone, and three or four more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every single sign and trace of it.

You will find, too, that all itching and digging of the scalp will stop, and your hair will be silky, fluffy, lustrous, soft and look and feel hundred times better. You can get liquid arvon at any drug store. It is inexpensive and four ounces is all you will need, no matter how much dandruff you have. This simple remedy never fails.

A WOMAN DOCTOR

says, "Eugenics is a necessary factor in the future of the race. The average American girl is unfit for motherhood." This may be true, but if weak and ailing girls passing from girlhood to womanhood would only reply, as thousands do, upon Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound—that simple remedy made from roots and herbs,—to restore the system to a normal, healthy condition, it would cause many ills from which they suffer to disappear, so that motherhood might become the joy of their lives.

SAMUEL BOWLES, EDITOR.

Samuel Bowles, of Springfield, was a modest gentleman who had devoted the working years of a life cut much too short, to making a good newspaper in a moderate sized town. When he died the other day, his death was recorded and regretted all over the country. The very general sorrow indicates that what he did in the world was worth doing.

And, of course, it was. From the death of his father, in 1878, Mr. Bowles was editor and publisher of the Springfield Republican. For thirty-seven years he controlled that paper, and steadily added to its influence and reputation, already great when he received it. This he did without change in the character of the paper and without any violent changes in its appearance, though it has gradually increased in size and has kept up with the times.

If there were five hundred men like Mr. Bowles in this country, making such newspapers as he has made and securing for them such a distribution as would make them pay, we could almost get along without colleges. By such papers education, including political education, is brought to the door. The Bowles family have shown that such papers can be made, and that the making of them is appreciated. It is remarkable that in a single family the rare ability to produce a high-grade newspaper should have persisted through three generations, preserving the traditions of that employment and giving promise of their continuance. There is no more useful public service than to make a good newspaper, and then keep on making it.—Life.

SEGREGATING FEEBLE-MINDED.

To Frank H. Reighard, chairman of the house finance committee, should go the thanks of every thoughtful person in the state for his outspoken endorsement of a better policy in the handling of the problem of the feeble-minded. If the legislature will take his advice, a step forward in the handling of a difficult situation will be taken.

"The crying need of enlarging the institutions for feeble minded youth I regard as paramount," declares the chairman of the committee which frames the appropriation bills. "The child of a feeble-minded father and a feeble-minded mother is sure to be feeble-minded, and the feeble-minded children now at large or cared for in reformatories, orphan's homes and infirmaries, because there is no room in the Columbus institution, should be segregated and the birth of another generation of feeble-minded prevented." Here, in brief, is the essence of the problem of the feeble-minded as it exists in Ohio and other states. The situation is perilous. An enlightened public opinion must be relied upon to support the handling of the difficulty along the lines suggested.

The expense at first may be large. But it will gradually decline, and in the long run such a policy of segregation would mean a financial, as well as a social gain to the state.—Cleveland Plain-Dealer.

THE ONLY SENSIBLE VIEW.

Former President Taft took occasion, in an address which he made in New York Saturday night, to declare again that it would be unwise, ridiculous even, to give independence to the people of the Philippine Islands at this time. If that were done, brigandage and revolution would take the place of peace and prosperity, he said.

And then, he added, another nation would step in and seize the islands; and Filipinos would learn, too late, the difference between a nation whose policies are those of a monarchy and one whose only thought is to promote the advancement of a sister nation.

That view must be finding gradual acceptance, even at Washington, where Philippine independence was until recently a tenderly nurtured fad, for no further advocacy of the proposition is coming from that source.

Moreover, Manuel Quezon, the Filipino representative at Washington, who was carrying on a continental propaganda for independence, is said to have experienced a change of view. He may have learned something from the war in Europe and from conditions in Mexico. The former have shown him how the Philippines would fare under control of another power than the United States; and the latter, what their state would be if they were now or soon left to the responsible task of self-government.—Albany Journal.

ONE BURDEN OF SPRING.

"In the spring a young man's fancy lightly turns to thoughts of love," sings the poet. "Lightly!" Of all the burdens that can or do fall upon the shoulders of a young man love is by far the heaviest. The song that he carols so blithely is sheer bluff, meant to bide the crushing responsibility under which he staggers; it is like whistling in the dark to keep one's courage up.

For consider what the lover must do! He must prove to the object of his affections that he is unworthy of her merest glance while he invents a thousand devices to keep her from glancing away from him; he must wrestle in the silent watches of the night with a dictionary of rhymes to express his clumsy thoughts in Ariel-like verses, yet at the same time he is figuring that if he furnishes a flat he cannot afford a honeymoon, and if they keep one maid they can never go to the theatre; he must prove to his own mother that it will be nothing to lose him, and to his prospective mother-in-law that it will be everything to win him.

"All the world loves a lover," not because he is a lover but because he is a hero, striving to do the impossible, defying the grim laws of necessity and the freakish whims of Fortune, carrying a brave face to bide a quaking heart and remaining calm and sweet when he knows everyone is laughing at him behind his back.—Philadelphia Public Ledger.

ON THE CRAZY WAY.

"Ten out of every one hundred persons met on Broadway are insane," says a New York alienist. We suppose he judges them by their freak clothes and the wonder is that the number is not greater.—Rochester Herald.

Well, the North Side has a mayor again. They produce good material over there.

It's all over now but the shouting, and everybody is too tired to shout.

Voting was popular today. Everybody did it.

Anyway, it didn't go democratic.

CHANGING FASHIONS.

The girls have grown weary of dresses so tight that bystanders leery said they were a fright. Their skirts were so scanty I often have wept, when sister and auntie around me have stepped. None could be more helpless in pinions of steel, yet patient and helpless they stood the ordeal; for women will suffer in silence and smile; they think 'twould be tougher to be out of style. No women have scampered or frolicked for years, their garments so hampered the lovable dears. But fashions are changing, and soon the wide gown, they say, will be ranging all over the town. Our Bessies and Annes may dig from the chest the gowns of their grannies and trot with the best. Their legs—bark your pardon! their limbs, I should say—will have a whole garden in which they may play. The fashion's improving distinctly, this year; like circus tents moving the girls will appear. And when we behold them in flounces and hoops, the silks that enfold them in tassels and loops, we'll cry, "Moly Hoses! Is Fashion gone mad? She surely discloses the craziest fad."

ARLINGTON MERCHANT FEELS BETTER

Friedrich Redeker, a business man of Arlington, Ill., was a victim of stomach and digestive troubles. He went to a hospital for an operation for another trouble. When he recovered from the operation he found his stomach trouble worse and his heart affected.

He took Mayr's Wonderful Remedy. He got his appetite back and gained in strength right away. He wrote:

"I owe you some words of congratulation for your stomach remedy. I could not eat anything but soft food and the bloating from gas got so bad that at one time I had a fainting spell for three hours. I went to one of your Chicago drug stores and got your remedy. I took the remedy and the next morning was relieved. I am getting stronger and can eat anything that comes along."

Mayr's Wonderful Remedy gives permanent results for stomach, liver and intestinal ailments. Eat as much and whatever you like. No more distress after eating, pressure of gas in the stomach and around the heart. Get one bottle of your drugstore now and try it on an absolute guarantee—if not satisfactory money will be returned.

VILLA IS BEATEN, ARMY IN FLIGHT

Rebel Leader's Defeat Is Worst in His Life.

SHOOTS HIS OFFICERS IN RAGE

Oregon Pursuing Fleeing Rebels Toward North While Villa Remains at Aguas Calientes, Where Blow Was Struck—Loss Reported 6,000 With Best Cannon.

El Paso, Tex., April 20.—Suffering from the worst defeat of his life, forced to shoot his own officers to stem the tide of retreat, General Villa is at Aguas Calientes, where he received the blow at the hands of General Obregon that demoralized his hitherto invincible fighting force. Part of his army is at Aguas Calientes and part of it has fled further north. General Villa is reported raging and has already reduced General Angeles and placed him under arrest, according to one of the many reports reaching El Paso.

Villistas reports say that Villa saved all his implements, including his cannon. Carrancistas assert that he lost thirty of his best cannon and many carloads of provisions, hundreds of stacks of arms and much ammunition.

Villa himself has wired from Aguas Calientes to his officials in Juarez confirming the reports of his retreat. None of his messages relative to the recent fighting or to the retreat were given out during the day, but his lieutenants admitted that he has "been forced to further retire towards the north, until a reorganization of the army can be perfected."

They still assert that lack of ammunition caused him to retire, but reports from men who were in the vicinity of Celaya during the fighting last week and who are now reaching the border are that Villa had an ammunition supply, but was simply out-fought and out-generated by the Carrancistas.

Villa's Reported Loss 6,000. Villa lost 6,000 men, according to the reports brought here and the Obregon loss was very light.

At the head of his 20,000 men, flushed with victory, Obregon is reported as pressing the Villa troops in their rear as they retreated northward. It is learned from sources that are wholly reliable that the Villa defeat is the worst the commander of the north has ever experienced. Governor Carrothers, representing the American state department at Washington, is known to have confirmed the Villa defeat in official dispatches to Washington and private telegrams have been received in several quarters that leave no doubt of the defeat of Villa for the second time at the hands of Obregon. Villa attempted Friday and Saturday to rally his men at Irapuato as they fled back from Celaya, but failed and the retreat became a rout.

LAEMMLE, FILM MAN

Is Called the Little Napoleon of the Moving Pictures.

Universal City, California, the Latest Monument to His Talent—Town Is Peopled by Movie Men and Women.

Carl Laemmle, the founder of Universal City, has done much toward the advancement of moving pictures. Those who have come in contact with him know what a great leader he is.

This "Little Napoleon of the moving pictures," as his friends call him, arrived in America twenty-nine years ago in steerage without money and ignorant of the language and customs of this country. Beginning as errand boy, he rose through various employments to the management of a large retail clothing store in Oshkosh, Wisconsin. His great virtue was for saving what he earned.

With the ambition of youth he always longed for something bigger and better and was ever on the lookout for an opportunity. He dropped into a moving picture theater in Chicago when that popular pastime was being introduced to the amusement seeking public. He became interested and believed that it was the opportunity he was seeking and made up his mind to enter the field as an exhibitor. Mainly on his nerve, for he had small capital, he opened a theater in Chicago in a desirable locality and it proved successful from the moment the doors were thrown open. A month later he had another theater in profitable operation. Then he branched out into the renting end of the business, which required that he buy a stock of film. This grew very rapidly and within three months the first Laemmle Film Service was incorporated.

With the development of the moving picture business there came into existence a combination of manufacturers who, basing their contentions on patent rights, endeavored to keep others from manufacturing moving pictures. This combination of ten manufacturers closed the market of the United States so tightly that an independent found great difficulty to either make or market his film. However, American made goods was what the people wanted. In order to avoid buying from these manufacturers, and against the advice of his friends, who thought it would ruin him, he organized the Imp Films Co. It was a rather difficult task that Mr. Laemmle picked out for himself, for back of the manufacturers of the combination was unlimited capital, and the talent and ingenuity such resources can command. On his side were only his confidence and ability and certainty of the feasibility of this plan, which was shared by few of those who would profit most from its success.

The first picture that Mr. Laemmle put on the market was a big success. It was one of the best pictures ever flashed upon the screen up to that time.

The brand of film turned out by Mr. Laemmle was a success from the very outset. However, a contending factor arose in the shape of an injunction issued by the supreme court in favor of the combination, restraining him from using the best cameras which were then available. In order to avoid any legal entanglements Mr. Laemmle took his companies to Cuba and continued making the same quality of film he produced in New York city. Later he was instrumental in bringing about the amalgamation of the leading independent companies, and in 1912 became president of the Universal Film Manufacturing Company.

One of the first accomplishments of this company was the establishment of a large ranch in Los Angeles for the production of moving pictures. This ranch grew to such enormous proportions that it was finally conceived and decided by Mr. Laemmle to erect a city devoted exclusively to the making of pictures.

The population of Universal City is composed entirely of moving picture people. The mayor, chief of police and all city officials are chosen from among them. There are writers, directors, players, mechanics, carpenters, property men and other workmen, a small army of trained soldiers, cowboys, Indians and hundreds of extra people. Plays of every description are produced there and sent to all parts of the globe.

John Dossett was a visitor in Rochelle Sunday.

Norman Eichenberg spent Sunday in Rochelle.

breeds, long-horned steers, burros, military mules and Shetland ponies are stabled in several corrals.

There are two modern and thoroughly equipped hospitals and infirmaries fitted out with every modern instrument for surgical and pathological remedy. These are under the direction of two physicians. The pharmacy department contains every drug, chemical and scientific appliance necessary to the upkeep of the medical department.

A quarter mile track, which will serve many purposes, encircles a playground which includes a baseball diamond, handball alleys and tennis courts. Circling the track are grandstands, stadiums and bleachers, which can be converted into the ancient Roman amphitheater or the Olympic stadium of Greece.

Every nature of vehicle is contained in the carriage house, ranging from the chariot of the Homeric warrior to our most up-to-date landau. Next to this is the garage, containing a hundred automobiles of different makes and descriptions. Its smithy and harness shops are complete and thoroughly equipped for the purposes intended.

Cottages, bungalows and villas of all descriptions are interspersed here and there throughout the city. These are rented to the employees by the Universal company at rates far beneath the usual rental. It is not the intention of the company to make any money on the rental of these quarters, but it is merely charging the actual cost.

For the convenience of both men and women a clubhouse has been built. This contains a library, Turkish bath, bowling alleys, swimming pool, billiard and pool rooms, grill, lounging and reception rooms. The club is controlled and maintained by the company for the use and enjoyment of the inhabitants of the city. Adjoining the club is the gym, complete in its appointments, including everything in use in the athletic clubs in our largest cities.

The best water that can be obtained in California is supplied to every building. Its reservoirs are fed by seven artesian wells, which give water 95 per cent pure at the rate of 300,000 gallons per day.

While the city itself is very picturesque, there are within it many odd settlements. The Indian village, which lies off in one section of the city, is characteristic of the dyed-in-the-wool Indian as he was known in the last century. Their teepees are strewn over this section and they are permitted to pursue their own mode of living. They take great delight in reviving the customs that were in vogue when they freely roamed the plains and shot the wild animals in their favorite hunting grounds. They have revived the occupations that were indulged in by their ancestors, such as the shaping of pottery, making of bows and arrows, stringing of beads and making of tomahawks.

There are two restaurants on the ground, which are equipped and finished with the same completeness that will be found in any large city. For their own entertainment the photo players have organized an orchestra, which plays both the classic and popular pieces during the dining hours. This orchestra is screened from view by palms and ferns.

A stage accommodating 20 sets of scenery and conceded to be the largest stage in the world, is built in this city. In addition to this, there also has been built a large inside studio, which is used during the rainy season. There is also a wonderful revolving stage and a rocking stage, two innovations in the making of pictures.

The river which flows through the city is spanned by a number of bridges, ranging from the rustic foot bridge to the American trestle. All of these bridges can be converted so as to resemble some other kind of bridge, such as a Roman stone bridge or a cantilever. On the river itself is a fleet of boats ranging from a canoe to a fully-equipped steam launch.

The river is dammed so that a certain low section can be overflowed to convert it into a miniature lake. There is also much natural scenery available, such as the rugged mountain sides, the deep-cut canyons, the waterfalls which abound in the mountains, the numerous caves which dot the hillsides, and the ocean, which is but a few miles away.

There are many strange animals in this city which will remind one of the jungles of Africa or the wilds of India. The llamas, the tigers, leopards, hyenas, giraffes, zebras and many other wild animals complete one of the largest privately owned menageries in the world.

The natural scenery which surrounds Universal City makes it one of the most visited beauty spots on the coast. Rugged mountain sides, with their native trees and foliage, crevices, caves and canyons abound throughout this range. The city itself is laid out in flower gardens, which include plants secured from many foreign countries. Also the native flowers blossom there in abundance. Sunken gardens have been built, and many corners are beautified with plant life, all of which are used to splendid advantage in the pictures.

There are many other interesting spots in Universal City which must necessarily be seen to be appreciated, such as the inclosure in which the animal pictures are taken, the Wyoming village and the mechanical departments.

The population of Universal City is composed entirely of people engaged in the making of moving pictures, including many of the famous stage people of the world.

CHAPTER XIII.

An Unexpected Arrival.

"Is all your money gone?" Brent asked Ethel.

"I think so."

"Good heavens!"

"Dear mamma knows as little about business as she does about me. Until this morning she has always had a rooted belief in her bank and her daughter. If I bolt with you her last cherished illusion will be destroyed."

"Let me help you," he said eagerly.

"How?" And she looked at him again with that cold, hard scrutiny.

"Lend me money, do you mean?"

"Yes," he said. "I'd do that if you'd let me."

She gave just the suggestion of a sneer and turned deliberately away.

He felt the force of the unspoken reproach.

"I beg your pardon," he said humbly.

She went on as if she had not heard the offensive suggestion. "So you see we're both, in a way, at the crossroads."

He seized her hand fiercely. "Let me take you away out of it all," he cried.

She withdrew her hand slowly.

"No," she said, "not just now. I'm not in a betting mood today."

He moved away. She watched him. Then she called him to her. Something in the man attracted this strange nature. She could not analyze or define the attraction. But the impelling force was there.

He went to her.

Ethel spoke to him for the first time softly, almost caressingly.

"Chris, some time, perhaps in the dead of night, something will snap in me—the slack, selfish, luxurious me, that hates to be roused into action—and the craving for adventure will come. Then I'll send for you."

He took her hand again, and this time she did not draw it away. He said in a whisper:

"And you'll go with me?"

Ethel stretched lazily and smiled at him through her half closed eyes.

"I suppose so. Then heaven help you!"

"Why should we wait?" he cried.

"It will give us the suspense of expectation."

"I want you! I need you!" he pleaded.

"Until the time comes for amputation?"

"Don't! Don't!" And he dropped her hand suddenly.

"Well, I don't want you to have any illusions about me, Chris. I have none about you. Let us begin fair anyway. It will be so much easier when the end comes."

"There will be no end!" he said passionately. "I love you—love you with every breath of my body, every thought in my mind, every throb of my nerves. I love you!"

He kissed her hand repeatedly. "I love you!" He took her in his arms and pressed her to him.

She struggled with him without any anger or disgust or fear. As she put him away from her she just said simply:

"Please don't. It's so hot this morning."

As she turned away from him she was struck dumb. Sitting beside the table in the middle of the room, her back turned to them, was the strangest, oddest little figure Ethel had ever seen.

Who was she? How long had she been in the room?

Ethel turned to Brent. He was quite pale now and was nervously stroking his slight mustache.

Ethel was furious. It was incredible that Brent could have been so indiscreet.

How on earth did that creature get there without their hearing or seeing her?

Ethel went straight to the demure little figure sitting on the chair.

Peg's journey to England was one of the unhappiest memories of her life. She undertook the voyage deliberately to please her father, because he told her it would please him. But beneath this feeling of pleasing him was one of sullen resentment at being made to separate from him.

She planned all kinds of reprisals upon the unfortunate people she was going among. She would be so rude to them and so unbearable that they would be glad to send her back on the next boat. She schemed out her whole plan of action. She would contradict and disobey and berate and belittle. Nothing they would do would be right to her, and nothing she would do or say would be right to them. She took infinite pleasure in her plan of campaign. Then, when she was enjoying the pleasure of such resentful dreams, she would think of her father waiting for news of her, of his pride in her, of how much he wanted her to succeed. She would realize how much the parting meant to him, and all her little plots would tumble down, and she would resolve to try to please her relations, learn all she could, succeed beyond all expression and either go back to America prosperous or send for her father to join her in England. All her dreams had her father either centrifugally or centripetally beating through them.

She refused all advances of friendship aboard ship. No one dared speak to her. She wanted to be alone in her sorrow. She and Michael would romp on the lower deck by favor of one of the seamen, who would keep a sharp lookout for officers.

This seaman—O'Farrell by name—took quite a liking to Peg and the dog and did many little kindly, gracious acts to minister to the comfort of both of them. He warned her that they would not let Michael go with her from the dock until he had first been quarantined. This hurt Peg more than anything could. She burst into tears. To have Michael taken from her would be the last misfortune. She would, indeed, be alone in that strange country. She was inconsolable.

O'Farrell at last took it on himself to get the dog ashore. He would wrap him up in some sailcloth, and then he would carry Michael outside the gates when the customs authorities had examined her few belongings.

When they reached Liverpool O'Farrell was as good as his word, though many were the anxious moments that he had as one of the customs officers would eye the suspicious package O'Farrell carried so carelessly under his arm.

At the dock a distinguished looking gentleman came on board and after some considerable difficulty succeeded in locating Peg. He was a well dressed, soft speaking, vigorous man of forty-five. He inspired Peg with an instant dislike by his somewhat authoritative and pompous manner. He introduced himself as Mr. Montgomery

Hawkes, the legal adviser for the Kingsnorth estate, and at once proceeded to take charge of Peg as a matter of course.

Poor Peg felt ashamed of her poor little bag, containing just a few changes of apparel, and her little paper bundle. She was mortified when she walked down the gangway while the prosperous looking lawyer while extravagantly dressed people with piles of luggage dashed here and there endeavoring to get it examined.

But Mr. Hawkes did not appear to notice Peg's shabbiness. On the contrary, he treated her and her belongings as though she were the most fashionable of fine ladies and her wardrobe the most complete.

Outside the gates she found O'Farrell waiting for her, with the precious Michael struggling to free himself from his coverings. Hawkes soon had a cab alongside. He helped Peg into it; then she stretched out her arms, and O'Farrell opened the sailcloth, and out sprang Michael, dusty and dirty and bleary eyed, but, oh, such a happy, fussy, affectionate, relieved little canine when he saw his beloved owner waiting for him. He made one spring at her, much to the lawyer's dignified amazement, and began to bark at her and lick her face and hands and jump on and roll over and over upon Peg in an excess of joy at his release.

Peg offered O'Farrell an American dollar. She had very little left.

O'Farrell indignantly refused to take it.

"Oh, but ye must, indade ye must!" cried Peg in distress. "Sure I won't be aisy tonight if ye don't. But for you poor Michael here might have been on that place ye spoke of—that quarantine, whatever it is. Ye saved him from that. And don't despise it because it's an American dollar. Sure it has a value all over the world. An', besides, I have no English money."

Poor Peg pleaded that O'Farrell should take it. He had been so nice to her all the way over.

Hawkes interposed skillfully, gave O'Farrell 5 shillings, thanked him warmly for his kindness to Peg and her dog, returned the dollar to Peg, let her say goodbye to the kindly sailor, told the cabman to drive to a certain railway station, and in a few seconds they were bowling along and Peg had entered a new country and a new life. They reached the railway station, and in half an hour they were on a train bound for the north of England.

During the journey Hawkes volunteered no information. He bought her papers and magazines and offered her lunch. This Peg refused. She said the ship had not agreed with her. She did not think she would want food for a long time to come.

After awhile, tired out with the rush and excitement of the ship's arrival, Peg fell asleep.

In a few hours they reached their destination. Hawkes woke her and told her she was at her journey's end. He again hailed a cab, told the driver where to go and got in with Peg, Michael and her luggage. In the cab he handed Peg a card and told her to go to the address written on it and ask the people there to allow her to wait until he joined her. He had a business call to make in the town. He would be as short a time as possible. She was just to tell the people that she had been asked to call there and wait.

After the cab had gone through a few streets it stopped before a big building. Hawkes got out, told the cabman where to take Peg, paid him, and with some final admonitions to Peg, disappeared through the swing doors of the town hall.

The cabman took the wondering Peg along until he drove up to a very handsome Elizabethan house. There he stopped. Peg looked at the name on the gateposts and then at the name on the card Mr. Hawkes had given her. They were the same. Once more she gathered up her belongings and her dog and passed in through the gateposts and wandered on the long drive on a tour of inspection. She walked through the paths dividing rose beds until she came to some open windows. The main entrance hall of the house seemed to be hidden away somewhere amid the tall old trees.

Peg made straight for the open windows and walked into the most wonderful looking room she had ever seen. Everything in it was old and massive. It bespoke centuries gone by in every detail. Peg held her breath as she looked around her. Pictures and tapestries stared at her from the walls. Beautiful old vases were arranged in cabinets. The carpet was deep and soft and stifled all sound. Peg almost gave an ejaculation of surprise at the wonders of the room, when she suddenly became conscious that she was not alone in the room, that others were there and that they were talking.

She looked in the direction the sounds came from and saw, to her astonishment, a man with a woman in his arms. He was speaking to her in a most ardent manner. They were partially concealed by some statuary.

Peg concluded at once that she had intruded on some marital scene at which she was not desired, so she instantly sat down with her back to them.

She tried not to listen, but some of the words came distinctly to her. Just as she was becoming very uncomfortable and had half made up her mind to leave the room and find somewhere else to wait she suddenly heard herself addressed and in no uncertain tone of voice.

"How long have you been here?"

Peg turned around and saw a strikingly handsome, beautifully dressed young lady gazing down at her. Her manner was haughty in the extreme. Peg felt most unhappy as she looked at her and did not answer immediately.

FIVE MINUTES CURE IF STOMACH IS BAD

"PAPE'S DIAPEPSIN" IS QUICKEST, SUREST INDIGESTION CURE KNOWN.

You don't want a slow remedy when your stomach is bad—or an uncertain one—or a harmful one—your stomach is too valuable; you mustn't injure it with drastic drugs.

Pape's Diapepsin is noted for its speed in giving relief; its harmlessness; its certain unfailing action in regulating sick, sour, gassy stomachs. Its millions of cures in indigestion, dyspepsia, gastritis and other stomach trouble has made it famous over the world over.

Keep this perfect stomach doctor in your home—keep it handy—get a large fifty-cent case from any drug store and then if anyone should eat something which doesn't agree with them; if what they eat lays like lead, ferments and sours and forms gas; causes headache, dizziness and nausea, eructations of acid and undigested food—remember as soon as Pape's Diapepsin comes in contact with the stomach all such distress vanishes. Its promptness, certainty and ease in overcoming the worst stomach disorders is a revelation to those who try it.

NOSE CLOGGED FROM A COLD OR CATARRH

Apply Cream in Nostrils To Open Up Air Passages.

Ah! What relief! Your clogged nostrils open right up, the air passages of your head are clear and you can breathe freely. No more hawking, snuffling, mucous discharge, headache, dryness—no struggling for breath at night, your cold or catarrh is gone.

Don't stuff up! Get a small bottle of Ely's Cream Balm from your druggist now. Apply a little of this fragrant, antiseptic cream in your nostrils, let it penetrate through every air passage of the head; soothe and heal the swollen, inflamed mucous membrane, giving you instant relief. Ely's Cream Balm is just what every cold and catarrh sufferer has been seeking. It's splendid.

MOTHER! THE CHILD IS COSTIVE, BILIOUS

If Tongue is Coated, Breath Bad, Stomach Sour, Don't Hesitate!

Give "California Syrup of Figs" at once—a teaspoonful today often saves a sick child tomorrow.

If your little one is out-of-sorts, half-sick, isn't resting, eating and acting naturally—look, Mother! see if tongue is coated. This is a sure sign that its little stomach, liver and bowels are clogged with waste. When cross, irritable, feverish, stomach sour, breath bad or has stomach-ache, diarrhoea, sore throat, full of cold, give a teaspoonful of "California Syrup of Figs," and in a few hours all the constipated poison, undigested food and sour bile gently moves out of its little bowels without griping, and you have a well, playful child again.

Mothers can rest easy after giving this harmless "fruit laxative" because it never fails to cleanse the little one's liver and bowels and sweeten the stomach and they dearly love its pleasant taste. Full directions for babies, children of all ages and for grown-ups printed on each bottle.

Beware of counterfeit fig syrups. Ask your druggist for a 50-cent bottle of "California Syrup of Figs;" then see that it is made by the "California Fig Syrup Company." Don't be fooled!

Kill the Fly Before He Rises From His Filthy Bed

THE favorite breeding place of flies is the manure pile. The great majority of these pesky, dangerous insects come into life in our stable waste.

Until recently there was no simple, efficient and inexpensive method known whereby maggot life (the early stage of fly life) could be destroyed in manure without injuring the fertilizing value of the manure.

Paris green in watery solution—one pound to twenty-five gallons of water—appears to be the solution of the problem. It proves to be highly efficient as a maggot killer.

Take a common garden watering can, fill it with water, add a teaspoonful of paris green and stir until dissolved. Use daily on the manure and you will swat the fly in the most effective way. This weak solution is not dangerous to stock. They would have to eat large quantities of the bedding to be affected. However, the solution should be kept out of the reach of children.

Remember, the most effective way to swat the fly is to swat it before it is born.

WHO swats the fly And swats away Will live to swat Another day.

Mighty Arch of the Rising Sun at the Panama-Pacific Exposition.

THE mighty Arch of the Rising Sun is the east portal of the Court of the Universe at the Panama-Pacific International Exposition. The companion arch, the Arch of the Setting Sun, dominates the west approach to the court. This arch is surmounted by the epic group of sculpture, the Nations of the East, the companion arch being surmounted by the Nations of the West. These two heroic groups give the theme to the Exposition—the meeting of the nations of the world by the Panama canal. From base to the summit of the groups is 180 feet, the arches being equal in dimensions to the famous Arc de Triomphe in Paris.

DON'T WASH YOUR HAIR WITH SOAP

When you wash your hair, don't use soap. Most soaps and prepared shampoos contain too much alkali, which is very injurious, as it dries the scalp and makes the hair brittle.

The best thing to use is just plain mulberry cocconut oil, for this is pure and entirely greaseless. It's very cheap, and beats soaps or anything else all to pieces. You can get this at any drug store, and a few ounces will last the whole family for months.

Simply moisten the hair with water and rub it in, about a teaspoonful is all that is required. It makes an abundance of rich, creamy lather, cleanses thoroughly, and rinses out easily. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and is soft, fresh looking, bright, fluffy, wavy and easy to handle. Besides, it loosens and takes out every particle of dust, dirt and dandruff.

FRENCH CONTINUE ADVANCE

Further Gains Made in Drive Toward Rhine, Paris Claims.

Paris, April 20.—The French armies in Alsace have made further gains in their drive toward Colmar and the Rhine, according to official communiques. On both banks of the Ficht river the advance is being pressed forward and possession of the summit of Burgkorpfeld has been gained. This height is southwest of Schilleck-erwasen, which directly commands an important valley.

On the south bank of the Ficht progress has been made toward Metzeral, a town on the high road to Colmar. In this neighborhood a series of elevations have been captured from whence the course of the Ficht in front of Burgkorpfeld is commanded.

RENO DIVORCE IS WORTHLESS

Party Going to Nevada Just for Decree Not Divorced in Maryland.

Baltimore, April 20.—The decision handed down by the Maryland court of appeals, holding a Reno divorce decree invalid in this state has created consternation among at least a hundred couples in this commonwealth who have been separated by decrees granted by courts of other states.

The court of appeals, in deciding the suit of Margaret D. Walker against Frank B. Walker, held that when a husband or wife goes to another state for the sole purpose of obtaining a divorce the decree is not valid in the state of the matrimonial domicile.

Eugenie Besserer

(A Popular Selig Star.)

Miss Eugenie Besserer did not like the routine work in schools at Ottawa, Canada, so she took a little journey to New York city at the age of twelve, where she arrived with a quarter, and after discovering the whereabouts of an uncle, made herself at home in his household for several years. She then went on the stage and made more than good with McKee Rankin, Nance O'Neill, Wilton Lackaye and others. She then became an instructor in fencing, and four years later returned to the stage, as understudy to Margaret Anglin. At eighteen she had written a successful play in which she was starred. She went to Los Angeles, became a member of one of the Selig stock companies there, and has won popular favor in emotional roles of Selig picture plays. She is a versatile actress, having unusually wide experience and has a large following.

HIGH COURT DENIES

RETRIAL TO FRANK

Fate of Alleged Slayer of Mary Phagan in Governor's Hands.

Atlanta, April 20.—Attorneys for Leo M. Frank are preparing to carry the fight for his life to the state pardoning board and the governor, the attorneys agreeing that all methods of continuing the fight in the courts have been exhausted.

Frank, in his cell in the tower, which, at the end of this month he will have occupied for two years, received the news that his seventh and last appeal had been turned down by the United States Supreme court very calmly. He was talking with his wife when told that the court had decided against him.

"I am naturally disappointed," said Frank, "but I will keep on fighting." He refused to say anything else. Mrs. Frank wept bitterly, but was comforted by her husband. Leonard Hass and Harry Alexander, two of Frank's attorneys, have already begun to prepare a petition to the prison commission asking a pardon for Frank. "We want a pardon, not commutation," said the attorneys, "for we know Frank is innocent."

Governor Slater said: "I do not know officially that there is such a man as Leo M. Frank. When the matter comes to me officially I will act officially."

It is probable, however, that routine procedure in the case will hold it before the prison commission until Governor Slater goes out of office in June. In that event final action on the case will be taken by Judge Nat E. Harris of Macon, who will succeed Slater as governor.

The same organization is working on their annual fly-swamping campaign, which will be worked in connection with the clean-up. Prizes will be offered to boys and girls for the best showing in the number of flies destroyed.

OIL MOPS

Great advancement has been made in Oil Mops in the last few years. Also, the price is lower as well as the grade better.

The finest Oil Mop we have now sells for $1.25 and a pint of oil goes with each at that price. This one is a thick, heavy mop and the best feature is the way the handle fastens to the mop. It is hard to explain it. Just notice it in our window.

The smaller size of this same mop sells for 85c with a 4-oz. bottle of oil. We have 7 different kinds of Oil Mops. The lowest in price is 25c. These are a few that we are closing out. Also we have the Oil Handled Duster, sometimes called Auto Dusters, which sell for 25c. Three years ago these sold for $1.00 to $1.50 each. At present they are displayed in our window and may be seen at any time.
